Letter to the Editor:

The Team Behind the Cuckolds Restoration

By Eric Marden, Owner, Marden Builders

Working on the Cuckolds is an awesome challenge. I'd like to introduce and thank the team behind the restoration and rebuilding. I am grateful to be surrounded with such talented people, and would like to tell the community something about each one.

Andy Smith, of Wiscasset, has been a valuable asset right off the bat. He's a long-time tugboat crewman. He has worked on a few Lighthouse projects. Andy works on concrete, masonry, steel, and carpentry.

Robert Berger, of Boothbay Harbor, just moved to the area from York, Maine. He's a highly respected contractor in the York area—a master builder, a total package, and a great person to be around.

Jerry Scarborough, of Boothbay, is a concrete expert, Lighthouse specialist, and super hard worker.

Randy Decosta of Alna, is a master builder, crew leader and foreman. He's the man!

Steve Faulkingham of Boothbay, is a master tech./mechanic, ace carpenter, and key team member, with a great sense of humor.

Adam Giles of Wiscasset, an awesome finish carpenter, always steady work ethic, and family man.

Mark Holbrook of Boothbay, is a carpenter's carpenter, a pleasure to work with, and wicked clever.

Curtis Decosta, of Alna, is a college student at Husson Business School. He has apprenticed with Marden Builders for seven summers and school breaks. He has become a great carpenter, and an asset to the team.

Luke Scarborough, of Boothbay (missing from photo) is a concrete and masonry crewman. He's an extremely hard working 20-year old. He had to be at a musical gig when the photo was taken.

Myself, Eric Marden of Boothbay, owner of Marden Builders.

I am proud and honored to be a part of the next chapter of the Cuckolds Fog Signal and Light Station. And I am pleased that neighbors and cruisers have commended us, noting that "work crews have not let one blade of grass grow under their feet." We take delight in bringing this historic landmark back to the way it was, so our kids and theirs can enjoy it.

And we thank everyone in the community who has supported this endeavor, for your generosity, your volunteer assistance, and your spirit.

Sincerely,

Eric Marden
Marden Builders
